systems produce more food and higher farm incomes while reducing water use and risks of crop failure noted, much of the criticism of the DSM has to do with the appropriateness of applying a classification