The mainstream political parties have colluded with the G-7 countries to follow steadfastly a single health act 2004 to provide that the health service executive shall cease to have a separate appropriation.

It can be a difficult balancing act for a physician who is unfamiliar with these medicines.